Marijuana Alert - April 5, 2018

WATCH this documentary about the social experiment of the commercialization and legalization of Marijuana. See what happened in Colorado after voters were fooled into believing regulation would improve schools, end black market sales, and not impact children.

Marijuana May Lead Non-Smokers to Cigarettes Former smokers who use cannabis are also more likely to relapse, and current smokers who use cannabis are less likely to quit. Read more

Bank of Springfield pulling out of Illinois medical marijuana industry

The main bank serving Illinois medical marijuana companies is pulling out of the industry, leaving operators with few options other than dealing in cash. Read more

Is a marijuana dispensary an "unlawful" business? A federal judge will decide.

PharmaCann, an Illinois-based medical marijuana grower and retailer, has a permit to build a dispensary where a Mexican restaurant once stood. It bought the site on the periphery of the Philadelphia Mills shopping center for a reported $1.1 million.

But Philadelphia Mills' owner, Simon Property Group, doesn't want the dispensary there. Simon, which has no claim on the property, hasn't explained why it's opposed. But it filed a legal challenge against PharmaCann, claiming the property deed prohibits using the site for "a drug store" or any "unlawful" purpose.

"It's a case with potentially far-reaching implications," said Bill Roark, a Lansdale lawyer who co-chairs the Pennsylvania Bar Association's Medical Marijuana and Hemp Law Committee. "It's not a new question. But you don't want a federal court answering it, because you know what they're going to say. This could create a ripple effect through dozens of states." Read more

For Immediate Action

SB 2275, to put a marijuana referendum on the November ballot, passed in the Senate and will be heard in the House Executive Committee on April 10th.
